RESIDENTIAL COLLEGE

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

How can we, as an academic community, better support the personal and intellectual development of all of our students? How can we ensure their success throughout their four years at Wake Forest and beyond?

Faculty and staff serving on the President's First-Year Experience Commission, along with President Hatch himself, concluded, after assessing the Faculty Fellows Program in our First-Year Residences and extensive research, that creating a Residential College to open Fall 2020 and further exploring a residential college system holds the most promise. For the past year, a committee comprising college faculty and campus life staff, co-chaired by Steve Giles, Chair of Communication, and Matt Clifford, Assistant VP for Residence, Life and Housing, has been planning for a single Residential College to open next fall on South Campus.

While a residential college is typically housed in an actual building, it is not just a physical location. It is an active community where students take ownership of their collective education and build enduring peer relationships with one another. Residential colleges integrate students' academic and residential lives, create a unique sense of belonging for all, and cultivate stronger partnerships between undergraduates, faculty, and staff. Residential colleges are ultimately empowering because they create new kinds of spaces where students learn from one another; share their diverse backgrounds, experiences, and perspectives; and generate mutual respect and trust.

The Residential College Committee will provide information and answer questions about our upcoming Residential College, and about residential college systems in general, at a drop-in Faculty Q&A this Friday, Sept. 27, between noon and 1:30 p.m. in Benson 409. Lunchtime refreshments will be provided. Please join us to learn more.

The game starts at 7 p.m. Please feel free to stop by and enjoy some cake; family members are welcome!

WFU ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUG COALITION RESOURCES FOR FACULTY

According to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, the first six weeks of fall semester are a vulnerable time for harmful and underage college drinking and alcohol-related consequences due to student expectations and social pressures during the college transition. As one of the first contacts a student will have during these weeks, faculty have a unique opportunity to talk with their students about safe alcohol use. Hence it is important to inform and actively involve WFU faculty in prevention, intervention, and response efforts to effectively reduce the negative impacts of alcohol on our students' wellbeing and academic performance.

To support faculty during this high risk time of college transition, the Wake Forest University Alcohol and Other Drug (AOD) Coalition is providing the Faculty and Staff AOD Toolkit and key dates in Fall 2019 that convey strategies faculty can utilize to help reduce the likelihood of student alcohol and other drug related harms. The AOD Coalition is also available throughout the year to assist faculty by sharing tips on how to incorporate conversations about AOD use into courses and offering helpful advice on how to recognize and address students with potential problems.
