

Application for Special Student (Non-Degree)

WAKE FOREST
UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL of DIVINITY

Procedure

Wake Forest University School of Divinity offers opportunities for study as a Special Student (non-degree). This option provides academic credit and a transcript for completed coursework. However, this status does not make you eligible to receive financial aid.

Applicants interested in admission as a special student (non-degree) to the School of Divinity must submit :

- the application for special student (non-degree)
- official transcripts demonstrating completion of an undergraduate degree
- a one-page essay that includes:
 - your reason for wanting to take a course or courses for academic credit as a non-degree student at Wake Forest University School of Divinity; and
 - how you understand your potential contribution to the course in light of the mission of Wake Forest University School of Divinity to educate agents of justice, reconciliation and compassion.

Admissions decisions for non-degree students are made on a rolling basis. Typically, applicants hear a decision within 2 weeks of their application submission. The Office of Admissions will communicate in writing the decision regarding requests for admission as a non-degree student. A positive admission decision is required prior to course registration.

Admission materials should be submitted by email to divinity@wfu.edu or by mail to:
