

Where Have Classicists Been This Summer?

Professor Gellar-Goad presents on sexism, homosexuality, and racism in Steve Moore's Hercules comic books, at the Celebrating Hercules in the Modern World conference at the University of Leeds, UK, 9 July 2017.

Professor John Oksanish traveled to Edinburgh to present at the "Visualising War On and Off the Page: Interplay Between Battle Narratives Across Antiquity" Conference in June. He visited the St. Andrews Cathedral while he was there.

This summer, Professor Lather traveled to the University of Edinburgh to present at the "Materiality, Representation, and Performance in Archaic and Classical Greek Poetry" conference. While she was in Edinburgh, Scotland, she hiked to the top of Arthur's Seat!

Professor Pendergraft attended the AP Reading in June held at the Tampa Convention Center, which had a beautiful view of the Hillsborough River.

Our new Visiting Assistant Professor Dominic Machado traveled down from Providence, Rhode Island to Wake Forest University this summer to begin teaching in Classics for the 2017-18 school year!
