I Spy… a MOA Scavenger Hunt

Go to the exhibit called “Stories of Humanity: Anthropology in North Carolina.”

I spy with my little eye… something that looks like this…

What is it? ______________________________________

What is it? ______________________________________

What is it? ______________________________________

What is it? ______________________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Faith: Five World Religions.”

I spy with my little eye... something that looks like this...

What is it? ____________________________

What is it? ____________________________

What is it? ____________________________

What is it? ____________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Objects of Power: The Material Culture of Contested Memory.”

I spy with my little eye… something that looks like this…

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Horses and the Human Experience.”

I spy with my little eye… something that looks like this…

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________

What is it? ________________________________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Stoneware on the Silk Roads: Ceramics from the Changsha Kilns.”

I spy with my little eye... something that looks like this...

What is it? ____________________________________________________________

What is it? ____________________________________________________________

What is it? ____________________________________________________________

What is it? ____________________________________________________________

What is it? ____________________________________________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Children’s Holidays in Japan.”

I spy with my little eye… something that looks like this…

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________
Go to the exhibit called “Masks of the World.”

I spy with my little eye… something that looks like this…

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________

What is it? __________________________________________